Bennett Pleads for Speedy Solution of Depression Throughout Empire

WANTS ACTION IN PLACE OF EMPTY SPEECH

Canadian Premier Tells Colleagues They Can Accomplish Much

BY GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press
Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The facts are all in, the Canadian Prime Minister, R. B. Bennett, prime minister of Canada, Wednesday, in a speech before his colleagues in the House of Commons, spoke of industrial depression throughout the Empire.

He had before it a memorandum from Mr. George H. Smith, president of the Canadian Imperial Conference.

In 1931 that is only one year ago.

What would it have been like?

The whole world would have looked on the fire as proof of miraculous powers beyond comprehension.

Smoking, back-breaking, with headache, blinding, would have meant more than half-a-dozen angels especially sent down. And, had it suited

His Divine purpose, the Founder of Christianity would have made a whole host, make them unchanged from his persecutors. His principal discipline with him.

+ + +

BRITAIN'S A GREAT, POWERFUL

LEADER IN THE WORLD,

said Tuesday. Beginning life as F. E. Smith, son of a poor barrister, he extraordinary success in life changed him into "Lord Lloyd" and a no-small fortune.

He wanted to be Lord Chancellor, and became Lord Chancellor.

He was secretary to India, served during the war in Lloyd George's government, and was a speaker in the House of Commons.

And, like other men who are successful, he never doubted his success.

+ + +

POOR, DEPRESSED, AT THE UNIVERSI-

TY, HE SENT FOR HIS CREDITORS

THAT THREATENED TO PUT HIM BY BANKRUPTCY, AND SAID:

"Look at me, and tell me if you don't think I'm a good man. I may be poor, but I am not a bad man."

"Don't be foolish, and throw away now what you are sure to get later."

They looked at him, extended his credit, and said: "If you will be easily paid by us, we will do our best."

We faced them and through their grace, we were saved.

Within our control, have we believed every way of our present difficulties?

And, though we have come to this conference not purely with the desire to help others, but with the strong belief that by concerted action, we can help the interests of the Empire and all its peoples.

We have a common purpose,

a united determination to achieve that same high measure of success that has been attained in the United Kingdom and abroad with the aid of our own efforts.

+ + +

WE CAN NOT PROPOSE TODAY TO DEVELOP

CO-OPERATION WHICH HOLDS THE WORL-

DOWN, BUT WE CAN PROPOSE TOMORROW,

TO ALL THE STATES OF THE EMPIRE,

TO THE APPROPRIATE STAGE IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE POSITION OF THE CONFERENCE.

At this time I desire only to express my hearty endorsement of the view expressed by Mr. H. V. Bennett, that there is no room for complacency.

It is even suggested that General

H. V. Hindenburg's day is past.

The fiery Hitler reminds us of the days when Germany needs more power for expansion.

A large Bolshevik bear in Moscow will have something to say about that.

+ + +

GERMANY PROPOSES TO MEET THE CRIMES

OF EXTREME RADICALISM ON

ONE HAND AND FASCIST LEADERSHIP

ON THE OTHER BY ACTION.

Right now, we are reduced to national co-operation by a bitter few.

things have been done, practically no

MASTER MYSTERIES

By ARTHUR HORST

MURDER AT THE CIRCUS

'QUEEN ANNE TURNING A DOUBLE SOMER-SAULT. SHE STRAIGHTENED OUT AND CLUTCHED FOR THE SWINGING TRAPEZE. IT WAS NOT THERE! IT SWUNG TWO FEET ABOVE HER STRETCHING FINGERS!'

Beller, ringmaster of the Beller and Swarney Circus, is killed under mysterious circumstances. His tampered elephant tramples him to death. Queen Anne, the acrobat, is attacked by a man who leaps upon her swinging wagon-home by an assassin's hand.

This comes in by Swarney to investigate. Beller is dead, but Swarney is probably not accidental, but deliberate. He has been plotting to get rid of Beller ever since his marriage with Beller over ownership of the circus.

Beller, the master clown, believes his death was caused by an assassin who when he also died over a reirement.

Cap Wiegels, the animal trainer, and Queen Anne, the acrobat, are in love with Beller's widow.

CHAPTER IV

The first night Beller arrived south, with the first streaks of dawn the half came in Baldwin, still in New Jersey. He had been invited to speak at a State line. Baldwin was hooked for Prof. Beller and his circus. The circus went on into New York gradually bearing westward. The animals bearing westward.

The animals were in Iowa. Then to clude winter, and further.

The first night Dale went to sleep with the animals. He was in the staccato of the slides of the roundabout, the roundabout of the roundabout.

Dale had watched the dawn come up, in one of the extra wagons which were used for the animals of Swarney's No. 2 wagon. All night he lay in the dark, his head, as he lay, swinging over his head, as he lay, pausing, down the actors in the strange drama he had been called in to.

This was his record.

He had no particular motive for Beller's death; evidence points to him but he was not the killer.

Adele Beller—her apparent infatuation with Cap Wiegels, the animal trainer, probably because of her charge of animals, has sufficient courage.

And she is a woman who would go deeper into the Adele-Anne-Cap Wiegels triangle.

Beller's motive for the crime; probably suspects Beller of wringing his daughter, strengthening his motive, might easily think up such a motive.

"Tito Meister—if Beller wronged you, I'll kill him," said Tito Meister.

Beller, the master clown, believed his death was caused by an assassin who when he also died over a reirement.

Cap Wiegels, the animal trainer, and Queen Anne, the acrobat, are in love with Beller's widow.

When the wagon came to a stop in the middle of the roundabout, the men, who were all in the roundabout, were pulled by the lack of motion, and fell flat stretched out on the cold and fell asleep even with the Inspector.

He awoke at ten, refreshed by the cold air, and went to the roundabout to see what Dan McLaughlin, manager, yet knew.

All others were gone except for the Inspector, who was still there.

"Dan, I want to know who hit me?"

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." —Ex. 12:1.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS

Premier Bracken lost no time in getting off the mark for his new emergency fund. Perhaps the Manitoba Premier took note that Ottawa is situated in the backwater of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson is situated in the backwater when there is a chance to accumulate political kudos in the provincial field by reaching for federal money. Other provincial governments would do well to take the tip and get in while there is anything to get.

AN EARLY TRY-OUT

Importers of glass thought they saw an opportunity in the increased tariff to boost the price of glass and make some money. Ottawa is now considering what to do about this first attempt to capitalize the new tariff and soak the consumers.

A good deal more than the price of glass will depend upon this decision, if the facts as reported. Ten days ago Premier Bennett stated, as plainly as words can frame them, that price-boostering would not be permitted. The country will judge from the decision in the present instance whether that promise is to be made good at face value.

SIGNS OF DISTURBANCE

Washington notes with pained surprise that other countries are increasing their tariffs, or threatening to do so in response to the enactment of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill. That long-inhibited measure is obviously producing results which are far from the intentions of the framers of the tariff to shut foreign goods out of the United States, and does this. But it also shutting United States goods out of foreign markets.

And so it happens that what the United States chiefly needs is wider foreign markets for its manufactured goods. The dream that the republic could by such means realize itself the fact of the universal right of all to other countries only the privilege of digging up money with which to buy its products, is showing the advance symptoms of a rude awakening.

RAILWAY WORK IN PROSPECT

The two transcontinental railways, it is estimated, will launch a construction program immediately, involving the expenditure of $200,000,000, the Dominion Government agreeing to pay the interest charges for a year in consideration of the work being started at once.

Weather conditions in the west at present are ideal for railway-building, and in mild seasons construction has in some years been carried on far into the winter. The railways have an equipment, supplies, and a fine fall and a mild winter, a dead deal of building can be done before spring.

Work of that character is particularly urgent at this time because it can be done only by men who are expert. A skilled workman is the one who is suffering most through the mechanization of industry, and the one who gets the least benefit from the erection of buildings.

DEVELOPMENT COMES FIRST

Such information as has been given to the public does not suggest that the Dominion treasury was the better off to any considerable extent as the net result of the administration of Alberta resources at Ottawa. The substance of statements made by the authorities has been that the cost of administration used up most of the income derived from fees and royalties, and that this representation Premiers have appeared to be in agreement.

If that is the case, the transfer of resources to provincial control does not mean that the legislature will have more substantial revenue to disburse, though as development proceeds the income from this source should grow and eventually become large. For the time the important point is that the resources shall be administered in a way to encourage development, rather than to hamper in the hope of obtaining revenue.

It is more important that a quarter-section of land be converted into a productive farm than the province be able to collect a price for the land from the settler undertaking the job; and that the coal mining industry should be encouraged to expand is far more moment than that the province extract revenue by levying taxation which would eat up profits and discourage new investment in the business.

Manitoba doesn't come out of the soil nor out of mines. It comes out of pockets. Underdeveloped resources are valueless from the revenue standpoint, and also from the business standpoint. Alberta's oil fields and lumber back the development of the resources. That is the only way wealth can be created. To impede the creation of wealth by imposing a tax penalty upon those who want to bring the resources into use would be damming the stream at its source.

The city council needs good men, of that there is no doubt; and I hope would be, indeed, to pick the best men out. But seven from two dozen, however good they be, would stagger wise old Solomon just as it staggered me.

What fitness have there men, thought I, the town's affairs to run?

I'm afraid. I might vote for seven and scarcely know but one.

Is an apple on earth equipped for such a choice as that?

One has no medicine to cure the ailments of our day. I'm only sure we cannot mend our ills in such a mood and strong.

And so it is a city council out of such a motley throng.

Don't Apologize

By J. J. MUNDY

Be a thoroughbred and don't apologize for your horse and his furnishings do not come up to what you expect. You are a thoroughbred.

If those who accept your hospitality are the kind who would consider your home and its surroundings as a place of refuge and simple as they are, you are not entertaining true friends. You yourself are not to blame for this.

Your true friends are interested in you, not in your virtues.

Don't make yourself unhappy by being a thoroughbred all the time.

If what you have in your home pleases you, or if what you can offer is good, it is clean and nice and orderly, it is all that is necessary.

The apple may be cheap and sour, but it is good and you ought to be able to radiate that goodness.

Don't please others at the expense of your mind.

Don't apologize for being a thoroughbred all the time.

Frank Mundy

It is estimated that the crop in the United States will amount to about 2 per cent more this year than last. In Canada and in Europe the crop will be smaller than normal. The early apples will be the most plentiful, which means that apples will probably cost less than fruit now until December 1st. After that date they will become more costly for the winter season apples like the ones in the picture are to be had.

Since apples are such a beautiful fruit, you should make use of them during the season when they will be the most plentiful, hence the least expensive.

An sufficient apple is excellent for those who are suffering from catarrhal or sinus troubles. The apple is also an excellent fruit to use in diet for those who are troubled with various sinus disorders.

The apple is also good for those who have a weak heart.

The apple contains plenty of bulk to assist in the elimination of wastes.

It is believed that the apple is good for correcting an unbalanced blood chemistry.

The properties of the apple may also be used, though to a lesser degree, by using the apple in addition to your regular meals, not instead of it.

Apples are good for those who have a tendency to constipation.

Those who are troubled with constipation will find that it is an excellent remedy.

Two apples before bedtime.

Apples contain from 10 to 15 per cent of water, 25 per cent carbohydrates, 10 per cent protein, 10 per cent fiber, 10 per cent potassium, 10 per cent calcium, 10 per cent phosphorus, 10 per cent sodium, magnesium, and iron.

Apples are also a good food and are more valuable for the building of bone and healthy tissues and the enrichment of the blood.

Apples contain some acidic malic acid, which may be considered as astringent.

They may be considered in the subject of constipation.

A ripe apple requires only a few minutes to digest, but the apples should be chewed so that the digestive juice may be absorbed.

If apples are too green they may have a tendency to cause cramps or diarrhoea.

If apples are used properly, they will be a good food.

If improperly combined with other foods, they will not be digested properly.

Wolf of Wall Street," is the author of the screen play, "Grumpy" which the Dreamland Theatre will present today.

Workingmen Will Get Minimum of $27 Daily in 1950 Says Henry Ford

WRITES BOOK ON BUSINESS AND METHODS

Boys People Watched the Stock Market Instead of Business

Associated Press

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Henry Ford, the industrial tycoon, has written a book on business mettle which watched the stock market instead of business.

and believes the cure lies in making products and intensive effort to produce high-class goods.

He outlines his opinions in a book, "Business and Methods," which was published today by Doubleday, his son-in-law's publishing house.

Mr. Ford got a minimum wage of $27 daily in 1950, he says.

He believes that a man who worked 18 hours a day would earn $27.

He also believes that while a man has a right to work, it depends on his ability to find work.

He believes that a company owns a factory and that it is the company's right to run its business.

Indeed, many worthy people don't understand any other relation than that between employer and employee, he says.

Everyone would recognize the absurdity of employers padding bearing costs to give to others.

There is essentially no difference between the actual production of the engineer and the employee.

Business Fundamentals

The book, written in collaboration with Samuel Crowther, says the author:

"First, to make more and better goods for the consumer; second, to keep the cost down; third, to raise wages gradually and continuously and never so much as to force the consumer economically so to buy by low cost production.
